Two Organizations Partner to Place Job Seekers in Best Fitting Jobs

Dunwoody, GA – Hiring for Hope (<http://www.hiringforhope.org/>), a nonprofit organization that provides tools and services for family building and career management challenges, has partnered with TruYuu (<http://www.truyuu.com/>), an online service that helps job seekers present themselves as more than just a resume to employers. The two organizations will strategically work together to best match a job seeker's personality, passions, and skills with the right environment for their career and life goals.

Job seekers can begin using TruYuu in conjunction with Hiring for Hope on January 11.

Ultimately, this partnership brings together what the job seeker wants and needs from a prospective employer, along with what the employer needs from a candidate. In turn, this creates an ideal employee-candidate fit. Furthermore, more job options will be available through the relationships each organization has with job placement agencies, employers and educators to create a larger pool of knowledge and opportunities.

"Hiring for Hope always looks for new and innovative ways to help job seekers and our Career Angels connect," Tegan Agree, Hiring for Hope president and founder, said. "Adding TruYuu to our partnership family will empower job seekers with a new and innovative way to differentiate themselves in this competitive job market, as well as help them pursue jobs that truly match their talents, personality, and passions".

When visiting the Hiring for Hope website, a job seeker can get help with all facets of job preparation and placement through their six free Complete Career Management Services.

"TruYuu is thrilled to partner with Hiring for Hope to help people achieve their dreams while overcoming life's challenges," Andy Von Kennel, TruYuu co-founder, said. "Everyone deserves the opportunity to stand out based on their talents when hunting for a job -- especially when facing life's toughest challenges."
